

The Sisters of St. Thomas Aquinas

20120 Barnett Road

Brooksville, Florida, 34601

Angelica - Fall 2012

Summer catechism in Modesto, California..

Dear Reader,

The commencement of the 2012 school year marked the tenth operative year at Queen of All Saints Academy. Each year offers a fresh opportunity to labor for Holy Mother the Church. Thanks to your prayers, Divine Providence has allowed the Academy to continue its mission of assisting the Church in her work of saving souls.

While the Academy is ever seeking to provide a high level of academic achievement according to the standards of Faith, its scope extends far beyond this. The school is especially dedicated to surrounding the youth with a deeply Catholic culture. All the attending families of our school are here for this common end. Their children will go through their years of formation associating with classmates who have the same high standards of faith and morals.

Queen of All Saints, moreover, wishes to further the spiritual development of the students. This is accomplished through daily assistance at Mass and the practice of various devotions. The students are instructed in all the fundamental exercises of the spiritual life, such as daily meditation, recitation of the rosary, spiritual reading, examination of conscience, and visits to the Blessed Sacrament. In order to strengthen them still more, the academy provides membership in a sodality. The members follow a simple rule of life and attend biweekly meetings, thereby being ever helped and encouraged to practice the spiritual exercises with faithful diligence.

The Sisters are finally able to use some of the roses in the garden to furnish the altar with flowers.

As it is impossible to shelter the students through the entire course of their lives, we can at least hope that, while attending the academy, they may become so molded and grounded in virtue, that they will graduate from school with the strength to shield their own souls. We pray that through their education and formation, our students may live and die as better Christians, saintly members of the Church Militant, and, ultimately, glorify God for all eternity in heaven.

Our thanks all those families who attended the catechism classes and the various camps this past summer. Your participation and assistance made these events successful once again. We look forward to your return next year.

Again, we thank you for all of your continued prayers and support. Through your generosity, may God enable us to continue and further our work and mission. May God bless you and keep you during this new school year and always.

In Jesus through Mary,

The Sisters of St. Thomas Aquinas

The first and second grade of Queen of All Saints, Florida

Bosco Camp 2012

The high school of Queen of All Saints, Arizona

Some of the first and second graders clean their classroom aquarium.

The students help spread sand in the school's new volleyball court.

